FURNISH MONEY TO PAY TROOPS

Emergency Board Sets Aside $120,000.

THE FIRST RIOT VICTIM IS DEAD

Piano Salesman Dies in the Hospital.

Columbus Comparatively Quiet in Presence of State Militiamen. Governor Harmon Is Expected To Spring a New Plan of Settlement. Speaks' Reports Show What Strike Is Costing the State.

Columbus, O., Aug. 18.—At a called meeting the state emergency board appropriated $120,000 to pay the expenses of maintaining militia here. Three weeks ago an appropriation of $60,000 was made. It was estimated that with the last appropriation made the present force of troops could be kept here for 30 days.

Militia authorities are preparing to hold troops here indefinitely. When the First regiment leaves the Seventh or Fifth will come, and possibly later Ohio's naval reserves will be ordered out.

The first fatality of the car strike rioting resulted when Robert Mitchell, 39, died at St. Francis hospital from a fractured skull. Mitchell, who was a piano salesman, was hit by a brick while riding a streetcar last Sunday night, and was found unconscious in the streets early Monday morning by police authorities. He died without having regained consciousness.

Mitchell's wife, who had been visiting her mother in Washington C. H., was called to Columbus by her husband's injury and was at her husband's bedside during his last hours. Mitchell's skull had been fractured over the right eye.

What It Costs the State.

Brigadier General John C. Speaks' reports show that he has a total of 585 soldiers on duty in Columbus at the present time. Of this number 430 belong to the First regiment of infantry, 100 to Troop B and Battery C, 20 to the ambulance corps and about 35 officers and special detail men. The cost of keeping these troops on duty is close to $2,000 a day. The privates get $2 a day, while the average pay of the officers is about $6. Each private is allowed 40 cents a day for food. Incidental expenses will run anywhere from $50 to $200 a day for the whole outfit.

According to officials of the Rail-Light company there are 586 guards or strikebreakers on duty, and more are expected today. The citizens in general do not look with favor on the importation of armed forces, as they say it will do no good, but a time will act quite the reverse by inflaming the strike sympathizers. It is probable that Governor Harmon will today be asked to cancel the commissions of strikebreakers who hold state police certificates as long as the state troops are here. There are now more men doing strike duty in the employ of the Rail-Light company than have been granted commissions by the state executive department.

WASHINGTON STATUE UNVEILED IN FRANCE

Distinguished Americans and Frenchmen Attend Unveiling.

Paris, Aug. 18.—A statue of George Washington, the gift of the state of Virginia to France, was unveiled in the Napoleon vestibule of the Versailles palace, this afternoon, in the presence of a distinguished company of French men and Americans.

Minister of War Brun presided and was assisted by United States Ambassador Bacon, Ambassador Jusserand, representing the foreign office, and the Virginia commission, consisting of Colonel James Mann, D. P. Halsey and F. W. King, all of whom made brief addresses.

The statue is a replica of the famous Houdon statue and is a notable work of art.

Cancels His Engagements.

Columbus, O., Aug. 18.—Governor Harmon has announced that the car strike situations here compelled him to cancel all his engagements for the next month. He will not go to Canton Friday, where he was to deliver a speech.

GOVERNOR HASKELL HAS MULTITUDE OF TROUBLES JUST NOW

GOV. HASKELL

Guthrie, Okla., Aug. 17.—Governor Charles N. Haskell is much in the public eye just now. It is said that should Senator Gore lose his seat at Washington, Lee Cruce, recently nominated by the Democrats for the governorship, would appoint the present governor as Gore's successor and will stump the state for Haskell at the next election. Besides this, there is yet the unsettled battle over the removal of the state offices from Guthrie to Oklahoma City. Governor Haskell has threatened to remove all state officials who refuse to move, and Attorney General West has advised the state auditor not to cash warrants for state officers' expenses until the supreme court has finally passed on the removal of the capital.

WILLAMAN ENTERS AN INSANITY PLEA

Is on Trial for Double Murder Up at Canton.

Canton, O., Aug. 17.—Cletus Willaman, charged with the double murder of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Koons here April 6, was placed on trial in common pleas court. Insanity will be offered as the defense.

Willaman was dressed in a new black suit and appeared cheerful, less careworn than usual. Mrs. Willaman, the prisoner's wife, was dressed in black and was waiting in the courtroom when her husband arrived from the jail. Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah Willaman, farmers, the aged parents of the defendant, and Cletus Willaman's son, took seats near the counsel's table. "I am ready," said the prisoner. "The sooner it is over the better."

MAYOR GAYNOR IS RECOVERING NICELY

Doctors Say No Foundation for Sensational Rumors.

New York, Aug 18.—Reports emanating from St. Mary's hospital, Hoboken, brought many of the heads of New York city departments hurrying over in automobiles to verify the truth of what they had heard. They learned from Robert Adamson, the mayor's secretary, that Mayor Gaynor had spent a better day than any since he had been in the hospital, and that there had been absolutely no grounds for the alarm that had been carried to the city hall.

Cleveland, Aug. 18.—First blood was scored for the saloon-keepers in the fight against the anti-free lunch law, in police court here yesterday. Patrick Gallagher, saloon-keeper, was discharged after a jury had decided he had not violated the law by selling ten free lunch tickets for one cent.

Gallagher was arrested by the detectives of the Retail Liquor Dealers' association, and his trial was made a test case.

THE STATEMENT OF LONGWORTH

Ohioan Will Not Support Cannon for Reelection.

THE DECLARATION MOST EMPHATIC

Declares He Takes No Suggestion from Any One.

Longworth's Statement, Coming as It Does Immediately After Several Conferences with President Taft, Is Regarded as First Move of Administration Toward Eliminating "Iron Duke of Politics."

Beverly, Mass., Aug. 18.—Following so closely upon the political conferences here of the past few days as to be regarded as especially significant, came a sweeping statement, this afternoon, from Nicholas Longworth, Republican, of Ohio, announcing his determination not to support Speaker Cannon for reelection.

Coming as it does immediately after half a dozen long conferences between President Taft and Congressman Longworth, including one, yesterday, at which Vice President Sherman was present, the unequivocal abandonment by Longworth of Cannon is regarded here as the first move on the part of the administration toward the elimination of the "iron duke of American politics."

The Longworth statement is believed to be the fruit of mature deliberation among Republican leaders. Following is the statement in full:

"In view of Mr. Cannon's unequivocal declaration that he intends to be a candidate for speaker of the next house of representatives I think it is incumbent upon those of us who are candidates for membership in the next house who have made up our minds upon our course of action and have positive views upon this subject, to state our position publicly. Had Mr. Cannon not made this announcement and had it remained doubtful whether he would be a candidate or not, it was my intention not to commit myself before election as to whom I should or should not support for speaker.

Longworth Is Emphatic.

"But as Mr. Cannon himself in his speeches so far in the campaign and in his recent declarations, has made his candidacy for the speakership an issue, I for one do not propose to dodge that issue. I shall oppose Mr. Cannon's election as speaker and I shall do so in the manner that I consider a proper and effective one for the settlement of controversies in my party, only in the Republican caucus. I made up my mind before the adjournment of the last session of congress that Mr. Cannon could not be reelected speaker, and my opinion has been strengthened since through correspondence and talks with my colleagues.

"I am not referring to those who have openly opposed him in the past, but to those who, like myself, have supported him. I am absolutely convinced if there is a full attendance at the Republican caucus that Mr. Cannon can not be again elected speaker.

"I have genuine affection of Mr. Cannon as a man and the highest respect for his splendid fighting qualities. I have supported him five times for the speakership, having voted four times for his election and once against his removal, but I can not do so again. I repeat that I shall oppose the reelection of Mr. Cannon to the speakership and that I am firmly of the opinion that his reelection is impossible.

"I want it especially understood that I say this solely on my own responsibility and upon the suggestion of no one else."

Longworth gave out his statement from the summer executive offices and was especially anxious that the last sentence be emphasized.

Cannon's Statement.

Danville, Ills., Aug. 18.—"I do not answer any statements which I believe to be fakes perpetrated by mischievous parties," declared "Uncle Joe" Cannon, this afternoon, when asked for a statement regarding the announcement made by Representative Longworth at Beverly, today.

"It is time enough for me to answer the president of the United States," said Cannon, "if he has any statement to make touching on the Republicanism of the speaker of the house when he makes that statement under his own hand. I will not fight wind mills filled by breezes blown from lungs of political or personal enemies or cowards."

TOO WEAK FROM HUNGER TO WORK

Too Proud To Beg, New York Woman Falls on Street.

New York, Aug 17.—Too weak from hunger to work, too proud to beg, Mrs. Katie Roberts, twenty-two, wandered the streets of New York for three days without a morsel of food. Early today she staggered and fell unconscious. At the Washington Heights hospital, where she is being treated, the physicians say she may live.

The little woman bears every mark of refinement, and her hands are cut and bleeding from scrubbing floors to which she was not used.

"I left my husband because he was brutal to me," the woman gasped. "I tried to get work—any kind. I scrubbed floors I did odd jobs of house-cleaning. Yesterday I stood outside the Polo grounds and saw men and women come out and ride away in their automobiles, to supper parties. I hadn't the heart to ask them for money. I just starved."

In the woman's pocket was found twenty cents, which she said a policeman gave her, but she was too dazed to try to buy food.

THE ANNEXATION OF HERMIT KINGDOM

The Japanizing of Corea Is Now Progressing Rapidly.

Seoul, Aug. 18.—The "Japanizing" of Corea has progressed so rapidly since the treaty of Portsmouth that even the most radical of the advocates of Corean independence now admit that the formal annexation of the "Hermit kingdom" by Japan, which will probably be announced within a few days, will meet with but little opposition from the Corean patriots.

A year ago the execution of such a move as Japan plans would have met with stout resistance by the band of Coreans that has been responsible for a number of assassinations of officials whose influence was considered inimical to Corea. Japan, however, has such a strong military hand on Corea now that it is seen that resistance would be suicide on the part of those offering it.

FOREIGNERS IN PANIC AT FIRE

Riot During Progress of New Jersey Blaze.

STAMPEDE STOPPED BY THE PRIESTS

Who Soothe Women and Scold the Men.

Clamor and Sight of the Blaze Working Toward Their Homes Drive Polack Tenement Dwellers into the Street and Wild Panic Follows—Fireman Is Killed by Live Wire.

New York, Aug. 18.—Jersey City was so hard hit by fire that she had to call on New York for help. Before the firefighters of Manhattan and Jersey whipped the flames there was nothing left of a solid block of factory buildings but sizzling ashes, and black holes in adjoining streets marked the ruin outside the wasted block. The first cost the life of a man and $1,000,000. Only the the most desperate fighting held it from sweeping over the Polack quarter, where the old tenements were crammed with families.

Within the burned block were the cork manufacturing plant of the Trustow-Fuller company, the Independent Baking Powder company's factory, the Ames rolling mills, the Ames cooperage factory and a few small buildings connected with the big shops. Just outside of the block, across Morgan street, was the big plant of the Regal Sack company. The fire leaped from the block and burned it to the ground.

The clamor and the sight of the flames working toward their homes drove the Polack tenement dwellers into a panic. They surged into the street, dragging their belongings and screaming. The police could do nothing with them without clubbing. Finally priests appeared and went about soothing the women and scolding the men. The stampede was stopped.

Fireman Spencer Babcock touched a live wire which dangled from a ceiling and was instantly killed.

THE FIRE TRAPS ARE CONDEMNED

State Fire Marshal Gets Busy in Columbus.

ORDERS BAD LAND SHACKS TORN DOWN

They Are Owned by the Leading Citizens.

Hamilton County Gets Clean Bill of Health—Eleven Bootleggers Are Freed — Governor Harmon Is Halted by Guard in the Capital City—Two Condemned Men Continually Read Bible.

Columbus, Aug. 18.—By order of State Fire Marshal Zuber, fifty shacks in the "bad lands" district in the heart of the city will be torn down, he having condemned them as fire traps. They are owned by leading citizens, who have set up a howl over the order. The owners may be fined from five dollars to $10 a day for every day that the buildings remain up after the order is given. The fire marshal intends to issue similar orders for two other undesirable parts of the city.

Given Clean Bill.

Considerable surprise was manifested over the report filed with the state accounting bureau, Wednesday, which gave every town in Hamilton county a clean bill of health. Not a single case was found in the twenty-nine different municipalities in which as much as a penny of the public funds unlawfully disbursed. This is a fine record and one unequaled by any other county in the state.

Bootleggers Tried.

Because they were penniless, United States commissioner Johnson, Wednesday, freed eleven bootleggers from the Franklin county jail where they have been for the past three months. A fine of $100, assessed against each, was knocked off. Some of the men turned loose are of good families and of some standing. They were arrested in a raid made by government officers.

Governor Halted.

Governor Harmon was halted by a guard as he was about to enter the state-house grounds at 10 o'clock, last night, who refused to permit him to enter until he had been identified.

The chief executive explained who he was to the soldier, who firmly refused to let him pass until he had called the corporal of the guard and he, not knowing called for the sergeant, who was sleeping in his tent.

The governor was detained ten minutes before he was identified and allowed to go to his office. He did not get provoked, even if he was commander-in-chief of the guard, but complimented the soldier on doing his duty.

Reading Bible.

The two condemned men awaiting electrocution, William Swann and Joseph Scott, are putting in most of their time reading the bible. It has been the custom in the past for the condemned men to put in the time playing cards, but these men do not engage in that pastime.

Road Maps Ready.

Those who want a county road map can get one at about cost by applying to State Registrar Caley, of the secretary of state's office. There are several thousands of these maps ready for distribution. They are much in demand.

Next Monday Warden Jones of the penitentiary will leave for Montreal, Canada, to bring back Frank Hironomous, a paroled prisoner of the penitentiary, who violated his parole by leaving the state and by aiding in the escape of Frank Connors, a prisoner. Hironemous fled to Canada and was given a workhouse sentence there for some minor offense.

HITCHCOCK WILL REPORT ON POLITICS

POSTMASTER GENERAL HITCHCOCK

Washington, Aug. 18.—To make a political survey of the far west as well as some of the Middle Western states Postmaster General Frank Hitchcock will leave Washington in a few days. His exact itinerary has not been made out, and it is likely that he will be governed in his travels by conditions of political interest when he reaches the Pacific coast. For many years Mr. Hitchcock has made it a rule to spend part of his summer vacation in the West. He will combine pleasure and politics this year and when he returns to Washington in September will be able to tell the president at first hand regarding conditions in the Western states. The postmaster general is advised that in many of the states where the Republicans were torn apart a few months ago there is now a better feeling and that the Republican party is again demonstrating its ability to "get itself together" for the biennial November struggle.

Ischl, Austria, Aug. 18—Franz Josef is eighty years old, today, and the anniversary is being celebrated with great enthusiasm not only by the seventy-four archdukes who have gathered here for the affair, but by the people at large. The program began with an eight o'clock mass at the chapel. The aged emperor, in the best of health and spirits, spent the morning in receiving the royal visitors, most of whom were of the Austrian imperial house and relatives of the emperor. The birthday dinner, termed a "family affair," was served at 2:15 and the table was graced by the greatest gathering of royalty ever seen at a banquet board in Austria. After the dinner the emperor appeared on the balcony of the palace and greeted the populace expressing his appreciation at the kindly demonstration in his honor.

JURISDICTION MUCH WIDENED

Powers of the Interstate Commerce Commission

WAS DECIDEDLY INCREASED WEDNESDAY

When the Entire Railroad Law Will Go into Effect

As the Powers and Jurisdiction of the Commission Will Be Increased So Will the Duties and Troubles Complaints to the Commission Are Multiplying at a Great Rate—Commission Has Great Power.

Washington Aug 16—Two sections of the railroad law took effect June 18 when the bill was passed the remainder of the voluminous statute will be in force tomorrow and with the widened jurisdiction and additional duties it places upon the already burdened Interstate Commerce Commission things will hum at the headquarters of the institution hereafter

Sections authorizing the commission to suspend proposed increased rates pending investigation and empowering President Taft to appoint a commission to investigate the issue of stocks and bonds by the railroads took immediate effect The commission used its suspension power by holding up a proposed universal increase in rates in all parts of the country excepting the South The president is now selecting members of the stock and bond commission

In September the Interstate Commerce commission will assemble in Washington to tackle the new problems The commission now has, besides the power of suspension the regulation of all services in connection with the receipt delivery elevation transfer ventilation icing storage and handling of freight the supply of cars to shippers express baggage and the establishment of through routes

Complaints Increasing

An increase in the number of complaints is already perceptible in the business of the commission The complaints came in last year at the rate of one and one half a day and they now average from six to ten a day Much work will come from the West as the result of the section of the law providing that railroad shall not charge less for a longer than a shorter haul of freight unless for special reasons the commission permits the practice Freight charges almost everywhere are higher to interior than to coast points and there are many instances among interior points where the same railroad charges more for carrying freight a short than a long distance

All the railroads will rush in with increases asking that the commission authorize the continuance Railroad officials will offer what they consider reasons for the maintenance of the discriminating rates People who have for years been forced to pay higher rates on freight than was paid by others on the same kind of goods passing through their towns to points 100 or 1000 miles beyond will make bitter protest against the continuance of the discrimination Every station and every commodity will have to be considered and there will be an enormous number of cases

Other Regulations

Regulation of telegraph and telephone companies provided for by the new law will add much to the work of the commission No complaints have yet been received but they will not be lacking The forms of blanks accounting system and monthly and annual reports to be made by the telegraph and telephone companies will be prescribed by the commission This is now done in the case of railroads Complaints arising from interstate telegraph and telephone service will be handled in the same way as the railroad complaints

A big power granted to the commission by another new law passed last April provided that within six months there should be designated a standard system of safety appliances on cars to be adopted by all railroads Examples are couplers ladder hand holds grab irons and all other contrivances used in the operation of cars Experts of the commission and the American railway association are working out the problem and the commission will be ready to notify the railroads to get to line with a uniform system when the time limit expires in October

A law passed in May authorizes a commission to investigate railroad accidents and gives it all the power necessary to learn all the facts These investigations may also add materially to the work of the commission

It was last spring at school that some girl schoolmates told her that we were not her real parents Marie was much excited by what they told her and asked us about it We evaded telling her the truth

Marie left this note

I have found out who my father is and have gone to him It won't be any use to look for me

I never wanted Marie to know that I was her father said Cox She seemed too happy with the Petersheims

It Decides on Campaign To Run Them Down

Law Firms Yet Uncovered Are Said To Hold Contracts Valued at $20,000,000—Some Very Questionable Deals in the Probate Court Are Brought to Light—Grafting Proves To Be Very General

Sulphur Okla Aug 16—The Gore congressional investigating committee satisfied that the Indians were willing to sacrifice millions in hopes that they might realize something from their lands will spend the next few days endeavoring to find how many other law firms were interested in handling Coolidge affairs for him

That McMurray did not have a monopoly on the Indian land cases has already been brought out and reports today that before the committee will have finished its hearings it will be shown that a law firm yet unnamed holds contracts valued at $ 0 000

Thomas B Crews of Crews & Cantwell of St Louis representing a big syndicate testified yesterday that the people he represents were interested in securing allotments for Oklahoma Red Choctaws Mississippi Choctaws He syndicate has arranged for full interest in all lands secured for their clients and proposes to advance money to freedmen for the purpose of additional land on practically the same basis so that the syndicates interest in the deal would amount to about $2 0 000

Further investigation is expected to be made of the charge that Indian children were practically robbed of the lands when disposed of by agents

COLONEL MEETS SECOND DEFEAT

By Party Organization of the Empire State

CHAIRMAN GRISCOM HELD RESPONSIBLE

Both Times Defeat Could Have Been Prevented

Griscom Insists on Forcing the Issue When Warned That Votes Are Against Him in Selecting Temporary Chairman for Republican State Convention and Consequently Sherman Is Named

New York Aug 16 For the second time since he returned from Africa Theodore Roosevelt has been defeated by the party organization in his own state Both times the defeat could have been averted In each instance Lloyd Griscom chairman of the New York county Republican committee was responsible for the defeat because he insisted on forcing an issue when warned that the votes were against him

Will three members musing the full committee today by a vote of twenty to fifteen selected James Sherman vice president of the United States over Colonel Roosevelt to be temporary chairman of the Republican state convention which will meet in Saratoga on September 27

The rejection of Roosevelt came on the motion of Griscom So soon as he state committee met William Barnes Jr who led the fight to prevent the state legislature from passing the direct primary bill endorsed by Roosevelt in a letter to Griscom moved that Sherman be named as temporary chairman Griscom was was on his feet at once

I move that the name of Colonel Roosevelt be substituted for that of Mr Sherman Griscom said I also move that the selection of a temporary chairman be deferred until the next meeting of this committee which will be on the night preceding the convention

Barnes interposed a technical objection insisting that Griscom had no right to make two motions

Wrangle Follows

A parliamentary wrangle followed in which the Barnes contention was defended by James W Wadsworth Jr speaker of the state assembly and the Griscom motion by Congressman William S Bennett candidate for the nomination for governor

Finally Committeeman Harry W Mack Lieutenant Griscoms from New York made the motion that the selection be postponed and the vote was ordered

On the suggestion that action be deferred the committee by a vote of twenty three to twelve decided adversely Then came the vote on the Griscom motion On this vote three members switched because of friendship for Roosevelt but the Griscom resolution was defeated by a vote of twenty to fifteen Barnes motion that Sherman be chosen was then voted on and according to the announcement of State Chairman Woodruff it was carried unanimously As a matter of fact however Griscom Bennett and a number of the other Roosevelt adherents did not vote on the proposition

Five minutes after he had been turned down for the position of temporary chairman of the state convention Theodore Roosevelt disappeared from the Outlook office He left so suddenly that no one could pick up the trail It is not known whether he went by the elevator the stairway or the fire escape His automobile remained in front of the office

Half an hour after the news of Shermans selection was received the newspapers detailed to watch the colonel movements was still running around in circles trying to locate him

ASSASSINATION BEING PLANNED

Threats Made Against Four New York Judges

BY FORMER CONVICTS IN SING SING PRISON

They Tell Their Many Grievances in a Letter

District Attorney, Hearing of Plot To Wipe Out the Judiciary, Places Sleuths on Trail of Men Whose Crimes and Terms of Service in Sing Sing Correspond with Extracts from the Letter.

New York Aug 16—A letter bearing no signature but carrying information of a plot of four convicts recently freed from Sing Sing to assassinate Judges O Sullivan Malone and Rosalsky of the court of general sessions Judge Fawcett of Brooklyn, Assistant District Attorney Hart and Former Assistant District Attorney Ely reached the district attorney

In view of the recent attack upon Mayor Gaynor the threat caused quite a lot of excitement about the criminal courts building Inspector Russell after a talk with members of the district attorneys staff sent out men to locate the writer The task if the statements made by the man who wrote the letter are true, should not prove to be difficult

The letter was mailed in the district covered by the Grand Central substation It reads as follows

I am now a free man after a three years sentence in Sing Sing along with three others with whom I have made friends We have decided to deal out a death sentence to Judge O Sullivan, Judge Malone, Judge Rosalsky, Judge Fawcett of Brooklyn and Assistant District Attorneys Ely and Hart and a couple of others for our lives is not worth living

I cant locate my wife and child I was charged with grand larceny As sure is there is a God in heaven I am innocent I am also sure there is many an innocent man in prison The day is not far when some of the above mentioned names will be a thing of the past

Is No Joke

This may be taken as a joke but wait for results It is a disgrace to the world to see a married man taken from his family just because certain people go to the district attorney and say they were swindled

If these people are foolish enough to give another person their money let them suffer It is all right to send a criminal to prison but not people who take money for investment and lose

Within an hour from the time the letter was brought to the attention of Acting District Attorney Moss the detectives and members of the district attorneys staff were looking up records of convictions within the last few years and comparing them with recent discharges from Sing Sing The letter writer so describes the crime of which he was convicted that it should be easy to trace him in connection with the discharge or parole records of Sing Sing prison

EXPOSITION IS LAID IN RUINS

Fire Wipes Out Many Exhibits at Brussels.

THE WILD ANIMALS ESCAPE FROM CAGES

Big Fire Starts in the Belgian Section.

Vandals Loot Wreckage of Building and Escape with Many Valuable Gems—Great Crowds Surge to the Scene and Hinder Firemen in Their Work—The Drouth Helps the Fire King.

Brussels, Aug 15 Starting in the Belgian section of the International exhibition here, flames soon had laid in ruins the French, English and other sections of the white city. It is reported that there has been some loss of life and that a number of persons have been injured, but thus far it has been impossible to get any definite information along these lines.

So far as can be learned the fire originated where there was the usual large crowd outside the building to look at the fireworks It seems that the electric wires leading into the temporary postoffice in the Belgian section became short-circuited, and within a very few minutes the office was a mass of flames A few minutes after the fire was discovered the blaze was running fiercely along the facade, which is the most striking feature of this section. The facade is made of substances which were much more unsubstantial than those usually used in such construction, and as a result the building was soon destroyed.

The Kirmesse, which was a representation of an old-fashioned fair in Brussels, was quickly alight. This was a very popular attraction and the enclosure was somewhat crowded. It was here, according to the latest report, that a panic occurred, with the apparent result, although this has not been verified, that two persons were killed and 30 or more hurt.

Drouth Helps Fire King.

The weather has been warm and sunny of late and as a consequence the material in the building was exceedingly dry. This caused the fire to burn with great fierceness and, fanned by a strong wind, the flames spread rapidly and leaped from one building to another

Meanwhile the crowd learned of the catastrophe They rushed to the scene, blocking the way and hindering the firemen. It is doubtful, however, considering the inflammable nature of the buildings, whether the firemen could have checked the progress of the fire

The exposition covers 250 acres, and lies southeastward from the city It was opened by the king in April, but it is only recently that it has been in anything like a complete condition Some of the exhibits, which it is now feared are lost, are of real historic value, including old furniture, British and Spanish armor, besides fine French and Indian textiles and kindred arts

During the progress of the fire the exhibit of the diamond industry was burned, and pillagers invaded the ruins to hunt for gems The police hastened to the scene and were about to seize the looters when the cry was raised that the wild animals in Rostock's exhibit had escaped There was a wild stampede, and in the midst of the excitement the robbers got away with many gems. Soldiers are in pursuit, but so far as known none of the thieves has been captured. There is a report that a number of ferocious beasts of the Rostock show are prowling in the suburbs of the city.

The fire spread to Avenue Solbosch, adjoining the exposition, and 40 private houses were destroyed. After the exposition buildings had been blazing for some time the firemen blew up a number of buildings with a view to checking the progress of the flames.

A Mistake.

"You don't want to make any mistake about Philadelphia's being a slow town," said Bobbleigh. "No, sirree, I discounted a 30 day note over there once and, by jingo, 30 days pass just as quickly over there as they do here!"—Lippincott's.

So great is the demand in Germany for human hair that many substitutes, chiefly vegetable fibers, have been introduced.

FLOODS CLAIM SEVEN HUNDRED

Tokyo Suffers from Raging Waters.

EPIDEMIC NOW THREATENS CITY

City's Food Supply Running Short.

The Police and Other Authorities Are Making Heroic Efforts To Distribute Food to Flood Victims by Means of Small Boats—Situation Bids Fair To Become Acute. Other Cities Hard Hit by Floods.

Tokyo, Aug 15.—Tokyo's unprecedented flood has already claimed 700 lives, according to estimates made, today, with the prospects that the total deaths will run into the thousands as the result of the destitute condition of the sufferers and the inability of the authorities to render any but the slowest relief.

There is the gravest danger also of an epidemic sweeping the city as it is now certain that it will be days before some of the submerged sections can be cleaned and disinfected

The waters of the Tonewaga river have not risen since yesterday, but the expected subsidence the moment the crest of the flood was reached has not yet materialized and the suburbs, as well as about one-third of the city proper are still under water.

Distributing Food.

The police and other city authorities are making a heroic effort to distribute food to the flood victims by means of boats, but the service is wholly inadequate and thousands are not being provided. Owing to the cutting off of transportation lines, the city's food supply is running short and the situation bids fair to become acute.

Even the well-to-do people of the city, who have not been reached by the flood are on short rations and will remain so until food supplies can be brought in. The government is considering the advisability of confiscating the stocks of food now on hand.

Reports that come in from other cities show conditions elsewhere to be nearly as bad as in Tokyo. Yokohama and Nagasaki have been hard hit and the deaths there will reach well into the hundreds.

ECCLESIASTICAL AMBITION GREAT

By William T. Ellis.

The International Sunday-School Lesson for August 21 is, "Jesus Nearing Jerusalem." Matt. 20:17-34.

Cynics and satirists have not failed to point out the incongruity of strife for preeminence among church people They sneer, with reason, at the office seeking in religious organizations, and at the pride of place among the prominent. The evil is no new one Sad though it is to behold it, we find the same scramble for high position in modern general conferences and general assemblies that bred rivalry in the breasts of the little group of men who constituted the apostolate This lesson is the rebuke of Jesus to the self-seeking of two of His favorite disciples

The worst of it was that this selfish scheme of the two disciples and their mother was intruded into the sanctuary of a great and hallowed soul crisis. The noblest spirit that ever abode in human breast was approaching his life ordeal His soul was rent with struggle The intolerable loneliness of the conflict so pressed upon Him that He cried aloud to the best friends He had on earth for the fellowship of sympathy sensitive souls do not easily lift the curtain of their inmost being to even a dear friend; yet Jesus began to tell His intimates of the awful fate to which He was steadfastly pressing on

A Leader's Lonely Sorrow.

What visions those clear eyes saw as they fronted toward the capital of the race! It was to Jerusalem, the place of joyous pilgrimages, His city, the city of His fathers, the city that had long prayed for His appearing, to which He was now going. Yet He saw the shrewd hate of the ecclesiastics whom He had antagonized waiting to do Him to a foul death

All this did Jesus unfold to His friends the gross betrayal of their trust by the priests and scribes and Pharisees, the sham trial; the cruel scourgings, the mob's mockery, the horrors of the cross the full measure that His soul was then to drink He revealed to those from whom He had the most reason to expect sympathy The Man of Sorrows cared the pressure of a friendly hand, the understanding glance of an eye that felt with Him but it was denied Him

The lonely Lord was not understood by His nearest and dearest That was one of His crosses By that bitterness he purchased the right to be the comprehending companion of every lonely and sorrowing soul since He who trod the wine-press alone is now the Companion of the Sorrowful Way for all who are called to suffer apart from men's knowledge That He was acquainted with grief to which all about Him were blind makes Him the sharer of every similar sorrow

Politics in Religion.

While the leader tried to make plain to them the deep things of His experience, His followers were engrossed wholly in their own petty plans for preferment. They even yet knew less about religion as an experience than as an organization To them the places and power hulked above the ministry Almost as hideous as the intrusion of the ambition of James and John upon that sacred hour of their Master is the way in which modern disciples plot and plan and bargain and contrive for the places of honor in organized Christianity, while the tragedy of the Lord's passion for a needy world is being enacted daily How can men remain under the dominance of their petty schemes, when the great world calls, and the great God commands!

This come from caring more for churches than for the church; and from caring more for the church than for Christ Men somehow identify their own welfare with the prosperity of the kingdom; for what they honestly believe to be "the work" or "the cause" they dare to do violence to new truth and to full yet efficiency as if God had any cause other than truth and the world's uplift. A passion for truth and God, and a noble disregard for place and self, are crying needs in the Christian world today Rampant ambition puts and keeps incompetents in the most responsible places, so that strong men often turn in repugnance from the type of men who sometimes represent or misrepresent, the greatest enterprise God ever committed to mortal men. While we are studying the crude, blind and selfish ambition of the apostles of old, let us register a resolve to do all in our power to keep out of official position, in the local denomination, and especially in the church at large, all the place-seeking and ambitious men who care for the honors and emoluments of office above the opportunities to spend themselves in tireless ministry for the Redeemer.

A Woman's Meddling.

Woman in politics is at present a living question; but whatever the future may hold we know this one instance of a mother's meddling with things which did not concern her. Zebedee's wife wanted the highest places in the new kingdom for her sons, John and James So she tried her woman's wiles upon the Leader, even as has been done countless times since, in Washington, Ottawa, London, Berlin and wherever else ambition may find a ladder

It was a mild rebuke which she and they got "Ye know not what ye ask" Nor did they They thought not of their fitness, but of their honors They wanted not opportunity to serve, but to be served They missed the whole spirit of the teachings and purpose of Jesus. Woman's wit will for short this time It is when she obeys her higher impulses that woman is at her best; conspiring scheming and plotting are contrary to her noblest nature It was mistaken zeal for her sons' welfare, but mistaken zeal none the less, which prompted this eruption of selfishness into the solemn thoughts of the Master

So often is love misguided Parents plan second best things for their children They are more keen for success than for "getting on" than to get up Worldly prosperity is more commonly coveted than spiritual strength The character-making influences of self-denial, subordination and industry are disregarded in the pursuit of an ease for the beloved children. There are parents not a few who are sacrificing their sons to pass the mark by withholding them from the ministry, the mission field or other field of human service. It would have been worthy of the mother of John and James had she sought for them a double portion of their Leader's spirit.

Just Like the Heathen.

Apart from the unfitness of the candidates for the post to which they aspired an unfitness which the Teacher sorrowfully counted out their injudicious request set all the worst passions of the company loose and snarling. It bared other ambitions which shrewd policy had kept in check I heard a Scottish nobleman say recently that the cause of Prince Charley was defeated by the ill-concealed jealousies bickerings of the Scottish chiefs Even the congregation of the apostles need ed the fires of Pentecost to purge them from these unholy ambitions

That their way was just like the heathen way, Jesus frankly pointed out He quelled the lowering animosities of the other ten against James and John by showing them that they were no better in their conduct than the Gentiles. That was, and ever must be, a severe rebuke to followers of Jesus. They are expected to be better than other people, because they walk by a higher law If there is no discernible difference between church members and non-church members, then it must be true that either the church has leavened up the world, or else the world has leavened down the church Assuredly Christ expected a difference between His followers and the world outside the royal rule.

The New Royal Law.

A sixteen-year-old lad over in England a few weeks ago came into possession of a long list of new titles and offices, and a new motto. The eldest son of King George was made Prince of Wales, with the motto, "Ich Dien, "I serve The regalness of this was tied down by the King of kings when He declared "Whosoever would become great among you shall be your minister, and whosoever would become first among you shall be your servant; even as the Son of Man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister." Then Jesus proceeded to practice the precept by healing two blind men by the wayside.

The law of the new life is unselfish service. It requires nothing less than the might of omnipotence to cause such a principle to prevail in human society The unselfishness of his most devoted followers may almost be brought forward as an argument for the deity of Jesus. For, despite all the pitiful self-seeking of those who should be first in ministry, and despite the frailty and stumblings of a host of Christians, it is immutably true that the reign of Jesus has meant the growth of the lovely traits of self-denial and of ministry in human lives. Because they want to live by His law millions seek no longer to live unto themselves, but unto Him Who loved them and gave Himself for them.

PIE AND DIGNITY.

Congratulations to Assistant Secretary Winthrop of the navy department! Congratulations to the navy department for having Mr. Winthrop for assistant secretary! Unlike so many government officials he perceives the difference between the essential and the unessential in disciplinary measures.

A certain midshipman presides as umpire in a pie-eating contest at the naval academy. Undignified, of course. No one would recommend that the country's naval personnel enter generally into the business of umpiring such games of chance. But does any one outside the navy department believe that such exuberant boyishness demands a trial by court-martial?

Yet the superintendent of the naval academy recommends the pie umpire for court-martial Such a frightful offense against the dignity of the service, he thinks, must be expiated with due form and ceremony. The middy's diploma is withheld; the machinery of the navy department begins its task of removing the stain of the dire offense.

Enter Beekman Winthrop, acting head of the navy department. Perhaps he is more fond of pie than the superintendent of the naval academy; perhaps he merely has more sense. The pie umpire is freed of the charge His diploma is restored The navy department is doubtless shocked, but the government still lives.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

One Foot at a Time.

"Some people have a funny way of teaching themselves roller skating," said the manager of a rink. "They learn one foot at a time. With a skate on the right foot they keep themselves up with the left foot until the right learns the movement, then the left foot is trained in the same way. By all the laws of physics and human nature the skater who teaches himself piecemeal ought to get some tremendous bumps when he starts out on both feet, but somehow the training is effectual and he skates away without accidents."

DEATH CLAIMS A FAMOUS HEROINE

Florence Nightingale Passes Away in London.

WORK MAKES HER GREAT AND LOVED

She Devotes Life To Diminishing Suffering.

Miss Nightingale Is in Her Ninety-Fifth Year When She Dies in London Home—Founder of the Modern System of Army Field Hospitals—An Invalid from the Effects of Cholera and Hard Work.

London, Aug. 15.- Florence Nightingale, the heroine of the Crimean war and the founder of the modern system of army field hospitals, died in her ninety-fifth year. She was never married, having devoted her life to the cause of saving life and diminishing suffering in times of war and pestilence and to the general improvement of hospital service at all times and everywhere.

It was long before the day of the active suffragette and in the midst of the very time when it was considered bad form for a woman to stir out of her limited sphere that Florence Nightingale accomplished the work that made her name great and enduring. She had not alone the sickness at Scutari and the cholera at Balaklava to fight with. There was the prejudice against a woman engaging in a nursing campaign; there were some who considered her an interfering busybody.

But Florence Nightingale, having once earned her place, never lost it An invalid as she was from the effects of her hard work and the cholera, too, she retired early from the public view and in the shelter of that niche seemed even more heroic than before.

Dramatic Sequel.

London, Aug. 15.—A dramatic sequel to the death of Florence Nightingale, occurred, today, in the death of John Fineghan, an aged soldier, who acted as Miss Nightingale's orderly in her hospital work during the Crimean war. When Fineghan was told of Miss Nightingale's death, he was overcome, and the doctors say that grief killed him.

In all probability the dying request of Florence Nightingale, world famed for her work as nurse during the Crimean war and her subsequent efforts in behalf of English soldiers, for a simple funeral ceremony, will be ignored. Such a warm place did she hold in the affections of the people, that there is now a widespread demand that her body find a resting place in Westminster Abbey, where England's greatest sons lie buried.

The press of England is urging Westminster Abbey as the burial place. The greatest demand, however, for a public funeral with full military honors, comes from the English soldiers, in whose behalf Miss Nightingale devoted her life since early womanhood. They demand they be given opportunity to do honor to her memory. The death of Miss Nightingale has stimulated the movement to abolish the present precarious method of supporting English hospitals by means of voluntary contributions and of establishing a system of governmental maintenance. This is one of the things for which Miss Nightingale labored so assiduously for the last half century.

With the exception of the death of the late Queen Victoria, the death of no other English woman has called forth so many expressions of regret and messages of condolence as that of Miss Nightingale These messages come from all over the world

King George sent a personal representative to the home of Miss Nightingale to express the sorrow of himself and the queen

Well Shooter Blown to Atoms.

A terrible fate was that of Charles P Key, an oil well shooter, living in Wellsville, Pa., who was blown to pieces by an explosion of nitroglycerine. Key was shooting a well about five miles from town. He completed the work and left for the magazine, about a mile distant, with his team. A short time later a terrific explosion felt for many miles around was heard in the direction of the magazine. Investigation showed a mammoth hole in the ground and nothing but small atoms of the man and horses could be found. It is thought that the man dropped a can of liquid while unloading his wagon at the magazine, as he had not used the entire contents of his load at the well.

WILLIAM B. MELISH NAMES HIS STAFF

General Warner Laid to Rest Today.

Man Who Finishes Term in Ohio Pen Must Face Murder Charge in Illinois—Rockefeller Will Hold a Reunion—Dark Horse Is Being Groomed at Wellston—Thirty Horses Burned in Columbus Fire.

Toledo, O., Aug. 15.—Dead for nearly a week, George William Gordon, 58, of Allentown, Pa. a suicide, was found in the Merchants' hotel A small tumbler containing a few drops of chloral explained how Gordon met his death. Little is known of Gordon other than at one time he was engaged in the newspaper business. In a pathetic letter addressed to E. B. Conliss, business manager of the News-Bee, and dated Aug. 9, Gordon hints of the despondency which drove him to end his life. Among other things he said: "Verily, Dr. Osler is right. Civilization has no use for the aged man or woman."

Staff Named by Melish.

Cincinnati, O., Aug. 15.—Very Eminent Grand Master William B. Melish of the Knights Templar has appointed his staff. The first name he placed on the list was that of the venerable John M. Walden of the Methodist Episcopal church, who was appointed very eminent grand prelate of the grand encampment of Knights Templar. Other appointments are: L. F. Newby, Knightstown, Ind., grand standard bearer; Fred C. Thayer, Waterville, Mo., very eminent grand sword bearer; Huston B. Coleman, Kalamazoo, Mich., grand warder, and John W. Marietta, O., Aug. 15.—The funeral of General Adanfram Judson Warner, former congressman, personal friend of Abraham Lincoln, promoter of a dozen gigantic and successful enterprises, and one of the prominent Democratic leaders of the past, was held at his home here this afternoon. Although he had been in ill health for several months, General Warner had been confined to his home but a short time. He was appointed a member of the Perry's victory centennial commission by Governor Harmon, but resigned.

Faces Murder Charge.

Columbus, O. Aug. 15. — Riley Price, who finished a term in the penitentiary from this county for horse stealing, today was returned to Franklin county, Ill., to answer a charge of murder in the first degree. Price, who served under an assumed name, several years ago confessed in prison to having committed a murder in Illinois. He said that his sweetheart, Alma Wilmere, refused to marry him; that he crushed her head with a club and then threw the body in a well.

Rockefellers to Hold Reunion.

Rockefeller, and lineal descendant of Johann Peter Rockefeller, who came to America in 1723, has been invited to attend the reunion of the Rockefeller family at Newburg, N. Y., Sept. 9, and meet the oil king, who always attends.

Dark Horse Is Groomed.

Wellston, O., Aug. 15.—Should the congressional committee deadlock over the selection of Johnson's successor for congress from the Tenth district, Dr John E. Sylvester, editor of the Wellston Telegram, it was learned, would be sprung as a dark horse before the committee.

Fire Destroys Thirty Horses.

Columbus, O., Aug. 15.—Thirty horses of the Crystal Ice company perished in a fire at the stables of the company on the West Side. The fire was due to sparks from a passing locomotive. The loss was $14,000.

There is Light.

In everything that happens there is light; and the greatness of the greatest of men has but consisted in that they had trained their eyes to be open to every ray of this light—Maurice Materlinck.

WONDERFUL WRAPS
A Feature of Midsummer Toilettes

The Elegant Wrap has a Distinction and Dignity Unrivaled

One of the Graceful Satin Wraps which Outline the Shoulders

Dark Net and Chiffon Wraps Worn at Trouville

Embroidered Motor Wrap for Use Over Handsome Frock

Black Satin Wraps With Gay Chiffon Linings - Lace Wraps the Aristocrats of Fashion - The Supple Satin Scarf Which is Worn With Decollete Restaurant Frocks.

SAN FRANCISCA paradoxical is it not that in a season when straight and scanty gowns prevail and every effort is made to make the figure as slender and straight as possible wraps in exaggerately voluminous style should be the mode?

Yards and yards of the most costly fabrics are used for these huge wraps Pleated chiffons are hung over rich satin slips and flirty ostrich as soft as chiffon and as light as thistledown are draped with exquisite grace Wraps in the true sense of the word are these all covering, loose which yet the trim beneath from neck to foot and the touch woman knows to the last point for quoting the art of wrapping herself in her wrap how to stand to give state to grace to the long lines how to move without crushing the draped folds to flow out in ungainly fullness and most important how to keep the lengths of silks stuffs so that the wrap will outline the most lovely curves of the figure

Every Long Coat a Motor Coat in Paris

Wraps are wraps and cats are cats in Paris There one never dresses absolutely for the evening and the sleeved cloak which American women wear over evening frocks in street cars and all public conveyances is unknown on the Parisian The Frenchwoman muses a toilette for the theater, the opera the restaurant and her artistic and harmonious wrap is as much a part of this toilette as her decollete bodice The long coat close to the figure and with sleeves and buttons is a motor coat no matter how handsome it may be and nothing else

The "Religious" Wrap the Latest Craze.

Religieuse effects are now in grand chic and though to the uninitiated the Directoire circular collars the hoods and other details of the full satin wraps are merely smart and new to the connoisseur who have carefully studied the edicts they mean something, but not for many of these details are paid directly from habits of various orders

The most prominent of the religieuse features is the capelet collar which lies flat on the shoulders and is fastened at one side of the front with pearl buttons and heavy passementerie of braid A collar cloth matching exactly brought from Paris for each wrap over light theatre frocks Many of these deep religieuse collars with which the tall gilt girdle with which from the knee down the full width are confined under a deep straight band of crêpe velvet and the fur buttons which fasten the velvet are of the velvet with loops of crêpe satin in lieu of buttonholes

By Redfern is another stunning redingote cape which is so intricate and involved in cut that it is hard to describe Boldly there is a straight full cut full lined black chiffon hung over brilliant gold satin to cut having a cape set on the shoulder with tight sleeves Over the back of this and blue ribbon cut hangs a full cape of black satin which is set tight straight across from neck to waist such the waist had stretched tight sleeves and the fronts of satin have been hung across and sewed to the edge of the sleeves When worn and draped the satin of course falls in exquisitely graceful lines and the full fall loosely over the half length with six inches of the feet This drapery is under to form baggy over the whole at the top is a standing collar made of folds of satin with big buttons of royal blue satin centers with tiny jet for fastening

The Fit Over the Shoulders a Vital Matter.

It is a startling, of a trick to arrange these voluminous wraps and mantles so that while fitting closely over the shoulder and uniform, to perfection the lines of shoulder and arm the material will hang in ample folds below An effect of clumsiness must also be avoided and the wrap must be kept as light as possible This is accomplished by the materials used Fluffy satins and ribbons weigh but a trifle even when many yards are used the fabrics being draped with seeming carelessness, but really with consummate skill so that all the wearers best points will be accentuated by the softly falling folds

A satin wrap which has this graceful fall from the shoulders into full folds at the foot is illustrated among today's photographs This wrap is made of black satin and the light border is of white satin veiled with stone gray chiffon A straight stole of the veiled white satin covered with a soutache embroidery is set at either side of the front of the wrap and matches this portion trim in straight lines to the feet while the back flows in undulating ripples into the heavy train

The Wrap With a Train Appears

A further paradox in this season of abbreviated frocks and ankle length skirts is that a wrap having a train at the back This train is lifted when one crosses the room to step into motor or brougham but it is it sweeps the carpet and gives the draped wrap the dignity and grace which it needs and which a garment dropped on at the floor length never possesses

Only the very handsomest grades of satin may be employed for the softly draped mantles Cheap stiff satin is ruinous when used in quantity and it is far wiser to have once a mantle of rich wool material If satin must be used then to attempt a rich effect with a poor material There the new veiled satins which are as warm as any serge or homespun fabric and many of the autumn street suits are being fitted out in this voluminous satin which tailors as cleverly and correctly as wool itself

Luxurious Linings and Trimmings

The French dressmaker knows just where to put the scrap of oriental embroidery to produce a telling effect and the French wraps often show bits of embroidery and other like trimming set on as though they had been added as an afterthought but an inspired afterthought for all that Gold and silver embroideries are seen on wraps de luxe and one may have as much embroidery as one can afford across the back as well as around the neck and down the front or only around the neck and down the front or merely just a touch at the front of the collar Then there are the tassels wonderful things with silks slipped over the long cords for maidens to twist and tumble with as she talks to you And the buttons! A hundred trimmings worth of buttons is not at all a lavish supply for a smart evening wrap

But it is the linings that go straight to the feminine heart and most evening wraps must be sold because of their delectable linings trimmings or gems of Often chiffon is draped over the satin lining with an ankle length soft and shimmering effect and as every woman knows the lowlights of a chiffon lining is still like the twilight of still skies No one may see it and no one but ones self may know it is there but the calls the serene and satisfied consciousness that is there which rules all the difference

Transparent Wraps Show Off Beautiful Frocks

The wearing of dark chiffon and lace wraps over light and bright colors has made this season a notable in wrap annals It is the days of the lace and chiffon and lingerie frock have been developed in an artful fashion every pretty frock Every woman who possesses a handsome Spanish lace shawl or scarf is taking it to her dressmaker with the request that it be made into a stunning wrap without adding to it And the dressmakers have risen to the occasion It is wonderful what they have accomplished with a little piece of lace with a piece of the old pictures with a fringed shawl

The little lace wrap is rather couture in charm for the very young woman but there is a stately dignity and distinction about these lace mantles which make them eminently well suited to the dowager Jetted net wraps are also smart for older women and fringed effects are dignified rather than youthful Chiffons and nets while quite as transparent as lace are liked by the younger women and these transparent wraps are often banded in at the foot by deep bands of satin so that they hang in straight lines over the pretty lingerie frock beneath The more elaborate the costume worn beneath a transparent wrap the better for the pattern showing through the veil of sheer outer fabric, is decidedly fascinating and beautiful

The Shadow Wrap a New French Craze.

Most delicate gradations of tone produced by the veiling of one chiffon with another in these transparent wraps and the subtle color harmonies achieved are called by the French colorists shadow effects A navy blue chiffon wrap worn by a young bride countess at Auteuil was draped over a second wrap of reddish violet which produced a curiously changeable blue plum tone as the light struck the folds of chiffon The wrap was banded from the knee down by a width of navy blue satin lined with red satin With this wrap was worn a hat that heaped with feathers and had on reddish violet orchid at the side gloves were of silk in the same shade with small embroidered dots in self color All sleeves are in elbow length now and long silk embroidered gloves matching the costume, or gloves of a pale biscuit tint, are the rule

The Satin Scarf With Muff to Match

A novelty which has appeared at the French races this summer is the long soft satin scarf which is worn about the throat with the colorless frock This scarf is according to duplicate the muff which have appeared in some of the Autumn shops but these Autumn imitations lack the grace and the effective bit of the French scarfs The muff while satin is used and the scarf three yards long so that it may be thrown over the shoulders one long end falling at the back and one in front

TRIMLY SHOD FEET
with the Short Autumn Suits

Some of the Boots and Ties Ready for Autumn Days

MORE and more attention is being paid to the dressing of the feet than was the case a few years ago the average woman was content with a pair of walking boots a pair of patent leather for best and a pair of evening slippers nowadays the discriminating dresser has boots and pumps to match every costume slippers for at home and dancing shoes for all and silver and jet for evening Each All these boots and slippers are exquisitely kept too by the fastidious wearer They stand in a row on the floor to gather the dust and dirt and brush for their polishing and a row on a low shelf which can be easily reached and so carefully handled that no scratch is provided Evening slippers of course are worn sparingly in these paper and lean days

The woman who dresses well is rather well shod nowadays She may be extravagant as regards quantity but the styles she selects are simple quiet the useful and lasting left to the class of individuals Black kid such the vogue unless just now light pumps or slippers with sheer silk stockings are worn with evening costumes which a year ago would have been accompanied by dull wool fawn or gray shade combined with stockings and slippers Even if it make the foot look large it is stretch and spread out the foot If a suede boot is rather than that of one of patent or calf

Calf wear is the daintiest thing shoe wise to have bright cut lines and trim Its lines are dainty and the soft pliable fabric keeps its shape and its wears very well though a shoe of this leather is of course not subject to very hard usage High buttoned boots to be very fashionable this winter with dressy costumes and even short walking frocks will be accompanied by buttoned boots of light colored satin silk or kid At a very important wedding, so far as fashionable matters are concerned last spring all the bridesmaids wore with their diaphanous pink and blue chiffon frocks high buttoned boots of light blue silk and this has set the vogue for buttoned boots with evening frocks in shorter length though many women will cling to the appropriate and flatteringly French heeled slipper with evening toilettes

Velvet is a newcomer in footwear but the velvet slippers have proved so pretty and so alluring to the feet that they will continue to be very popular through the coming winter Many of these velvet slippers have Spanish rather than French heels and the cut is very low over the instep with a full rosette of silk strung above A small rosette buckle adorns the tip of this high heeled velvet slipper and this buckle is worn with one velvet slipper will always make the foot look smaller and dumpy The only low cut shoe to be worn on dress occasions is the dull patent leather with the tip of the toe and the heel covered with the finest of beaded lace Some ladies are to be seen in this lace trimmed shoe but it is in the latest gold and the effect is not the full dress one that these will be shoes of patent calf

Low shoes are worn for the autumn days with walking costumes in dressy effects but the footwear is fresh looking with stockings of the tone of the shoes Medium low heels high Military walking shoes have the effect of being close fitting and full enough to be comfortable Extravagance in purchasing low shoes is unnecessary for they will come in very handy with the first warm days Attention is especially called to the fact that the footwear is in many cases of the same color as the costume Black shoes are high at the instep Tan shoes are worn with tan stockings and gray shoes with gray stockings

The smart woman entering the Fifth avenue shop the other day while her motor waited without selected with the aid of her maid a hundred dollars worth of silk hosiery and the bill is piece of filmy embroidered lace Her stockings were rewarded wistfully all was saw them Black bronze was to kings formed the largest portion of the lavish purchase but there were also delectable pink affairs other of pale blue, lavender and corn color

The footwear shown in the illustration gives a good idea of the correct shoe to be selected by the average woman for fall wear There are sturdy yet smart built heeled boots of gunmetal calf for street shopping and walking use and these show the new perforated trimming vamp and tip A bit more dressy are the patent leather boots with cloth tops and these come also with uppers of suede The shape of the toe and the Spanish heel is not to be for comfortable walking Much like the toe of the dainty little three eyelet tie the right hand lower corner inclined curves inward in something the effect of the instep and the pointed toe Light tinted sole make this shoe suited for housewear with pretty frocks Two styles of pumps are shown on the front leather on good lines to display handsomely embroidered silk hose at the other style of gunmetal calf, the ankle strap which keeps the pump securely on the foot when one is walking is indulged in Mannish in style well suited to the needs of the woman who likes a serviceable smart shoe for autumn street wear, are the welts at the center of the lower part These shoes have stout welted soles moderate heels and they come well over the instep They are made of calf with neat perforated trimming finishing at the tip

Ten years ago we could not get stockings lacier enough Two years ago I buy would wear openwork hose With another revolution of contrarie fashions wheel lace openwork stockings are the ultra smart thing once more some of the effects are actually cobweb

The maid called in a small bag A beautifully gowned woman entered Fifth avenue shop the other day while her motor waited without selected with the aid of her maid a hundred dollars worth of silk hosiery and the bill is piece of filmy embroidered lace Her stockings were rewarded wistfully all was saw them Black bronze was to kings formed the largest portion of the lavish purchase but there were also delectable pink affairs other of pale blue, lavender and corn color

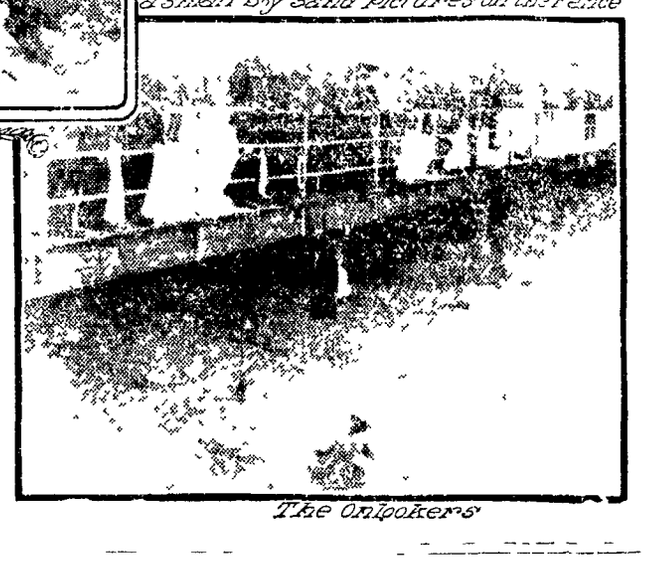
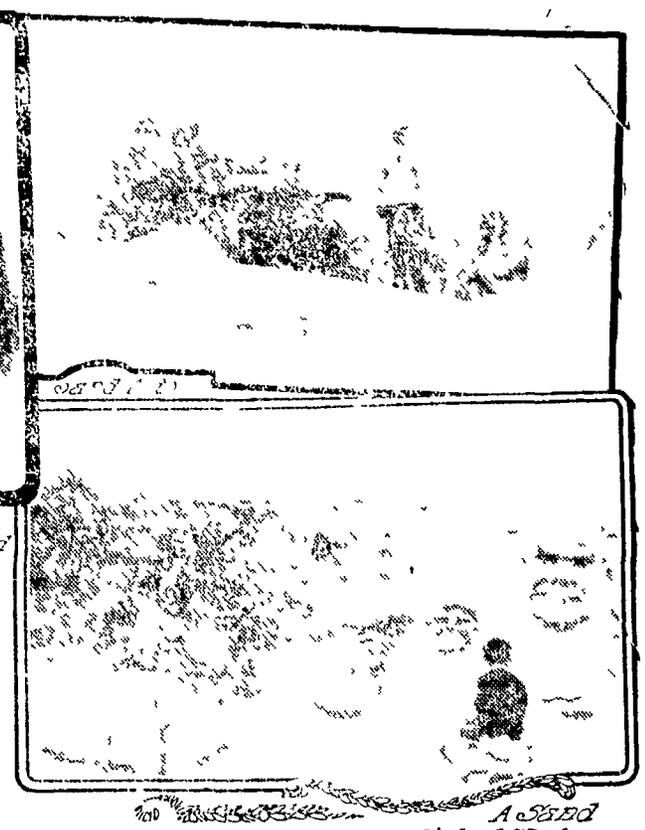
Novel Idea of a Small Boy Sand Pictures on the Fence



The Onlookers

A One Armed Sand Artist and his Work



A Sand Artist at Work

SAND modeling at Atlantic City has become a business and a score or more of artists of all ages have been especially busy during the present summer in modeling figures on the beach at the famous Jersey resort. The artists must have food and clothing so each man has a piece of cloth spread out in front of his work for the reception coin he expects will be tossed there by the spectators who view his art display from the boardwalk. The appeal for aid are made in various ways with the request is painted in black letters on the white cloth while some appeal to the skill of the spectators by making a model of a hat with an open mouth under which are such expressions as "Throw in bit his mouth etc. They always keep a few quarters and fifty cent pieces on display to encourage others to be liberal in their gifts. A penny thrown to the artist is picked up and it once put into his pocket for the giving of pennies must not be encouraged by the sight of one. People are too anxious to follow that style. Still one artist so while we are glad to get anything we do not wish to start pennyclitis here.

Several young men declare that they are entitled to become sculptors and announce on their cards that they are collecting money to pay their tuition at some art school. Three or four of these men have been assisting aid in this direction for several years which leads one to the conclusion that either the tuition at art schools must be unusually expensive or the contributions from the boardwalkers exceedingly small. Some of the appeals are made in poetry others in poor jokes while several merely ask aid in making a living.

Even children have taken up the art and one boy has decided that something out of the ordinary will bring more coins to his coffers than the resolution picture on the beach so this boy is using a fence and forming sand pictures in the boards. As a shower of rain ruins his pictures he is constantly at work. Now the American flag is in vogue and it is safe to say that this boy in his continually being at work tiles in more money than the more experienced sand artists who after they have completed a stunning piece of work and help to admire it rather than let the people see how it is done.

The style of pictures change each season. The earliest sand work at Atlantic City was modeled there about 20 years ago when a young man made a very startling model of a young woman in scant clothing with streaming hair holding a child in her arms. She was living on a sand lark and the picture was labeled Just Up by the Sea. The picture created a sensation and money rained on the canvas. Artist of the artist. The next year several young artists conjured with hopes of like success and every year or two new ones turn up. Busts of statesmen soon became the fashion then came villainous pictures of rats and automobiles and finally advertisements began to appear and one artist copied a 10th sum during the recent car builders convention by making sand models of the various implements used in car building. The new law which went into effect on July 1 of this year however prevents any more advertisements on the beach. This sand artist just year modeled in sand a large sand and people with half sized dissipated gowned women. It was the sand sensation of Atlantic City last season and thousands of persons passed away without comment on the excellent work. At one time matters too were so far in their favor that they were given an artist's permit to work

MRS. EDWARD TONGUETT SUCCUMBS TO BURNS

Victim of Gasoline Explosion of Friday Evening.

LIGHTS MATCH IN AN UPSTAIRS ROOM

Room Had Been Cleaned with Gasoline During the Day and Not Aired—Explosion Follows and She Dashes Down Stairs and into the Street, a Torch.

Fumes of gasoline used in cleaning an upstairs bedroom, exploded when Mrs. Edward Tongouett, twenty-four years old, struck a match to light a coal-oil lamp at her home, on east George street, Friday night about 8 o'clock, with the result that she was fatally burned and the house was slightly damaged by fire.

The room had been lightly closed all day, and was filled with the dangerous fumes from the gasoline, when Mrs. Tongouett entered it to get some bed-clothing to make a bed for her three small children on the floor down stairs. Just as she struck a match to light a lamp in the room, an explosion occurred and the little room became a sheet of flame.

With her skirts afire, Mrs. Tongouett ran down stairs, passed her frightened children and dashed into the yard, her screams arousing the entire neighborhood. David Waberman and Robert Smith, neighbors, ran to her, and threw their coats about her blazing form. Mrs. Benjamin White, a next-door neighbor, grabbed some rugs off a porch, and wrapped them about her, but before the fire could be extinguished Mrs. Tongouett was fatally burned.

Not knowing that the house was on fire, the two men carried Mrs. Tongouett, who was conscious, into her home. When it was discovered that the house was on fire, she was taken to the White home, together with her sobbing little ones. The husband and father, a barber, was at work at his shop at the corner of Main and Mill streets. He heard the fire bell and watched the department make its run, and asked some one where the fire was. A few minutes later, he was told that a gasoline explosion had set his own home

TOT BRINGS TEARS TO EYES OF COURT

Mama, I'm Hungry; I Want Something To Eat;

SHE EXCLAIMS DURING PROGRESS OF HEARING

Is Ordered Taken Out and Fed by Justice Charles H. Conley, and Father Is Given Six Months in Columbus Workhouse and Fined $200 and Costs.

"Mama, I'm hungry; I want something to eat," wailed six-year old Irene Leonard in the court of Justice Charles H. Conley, Monday morning, when her father, Elmo Leonard, thirty-one years old, a sign painter was being tried on a charge of failing to provide for his two minor children, Lester, aged eight, and Irene aged six years.

The child's pitiful cries brought tears to the eyes of many in the court-room, and the justice directed an officer of the court to take the little one out and get her plenty to eat.

Investigation later developed that Mrs Myrtle Leonard, the mother, had been living in poverty at her little home at No. 722 Silver street. She and her children, Monday, were well provided for by the township trustees. Meanwhile, the husband and father is languishing in jail. He has until next Wednesday to furnish a bond of $1,000 to pay five dollars a week to the Marion County Humane society for the support of his two children. In the event that he does not raise the bond, he will be taken to the Columbus workhouse to serve a sentence of six months and to work out a fine of $200 and the costs. Under the law, this is the hardest sentence Justice Conley could give him. If he furnishes bond, the sentence and fine will be suspended.

At the trial, Leonard had little or no defense. He said he did not send his wife and children any money while he was traveling through the eastern part of Ohio and in Pennsylvania, because he did not know their whereabouts. "Why, papa, yes you did," interrupted little Irene, "because you sent me postcards."

The wreckage caught fire and at dawn was burning fiercely, the portions of the bodies not taken out were visibly dropping down into the embers.

Two bodies, those of two women, one middle-aged, the other about twenty-two, were taken to a local morgue. At 8 a. m. several more bodies were taken from the fiercely burning debris and the sickening rescuers were horrified to see yet others slowly being evacuated and their ashes blended with those of the Pullman.

Canton, O., Aug. 25.—Cletus Willaman, accused of the murder of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Koons, heard his aged father and mother testify for him. The courtroom was crowded when Jeremiah Willaman, 72, walked proudly to the witness chair and told a straightforward story of the childhood and youth of his son. He testified that the accused was sickly and "unlike other boys," but proudly disdained to admit it was insanity. The aged mother, however, was almost overcome with grief, and at intervals choked back her sobs while telling of the unusual acts of Cletus when a child.

DRY WEATHER HURTS STATE CORN CROP

Crop Will Not Exceed 104,412,670 Bushels.

Columbus, O., Aug. 25.—The state board of agriculture at their session, yesterday, considered the corn crop report at considerable length, and it was the universal opinion that even with good rains now, the corn crop would be not more than one-fourth of the average crop, because of the dry weather of the past two months. Rains in different parts of the state have been reported during the past few days, but in no case have there been sufficient to check the work of the low drouth. Because of the shortage in wheat, the corn crop was expected to be a bumper one this year, but now it is estimated that the crop will not exceed 104,412,670 bushels of shelled corn. This will mean an enormous loss to the farmers of the state. The potato crop will only be fair, and the wheat crop will not go over 24,000,000 bushels as against 27,393,444 last year. Fruit prospects are also just as discouraging. There is more than usual interest in the regular monthly report which will be made next week as this report will give the figures in detail of the damage wrought by the drouth, which has proven one of the most expensive to the farmer, that has occurred in recent years. Secretary Sandles of the State Board of agriculture is taking special pains to have the report correct this month, and even outside of the state borders there is interest in the exact condition of the growing crops.

Roosevelt Says That Is His Duty.

HE RECOGNIZES NO PUBLIC DISTINCTION

Fights for Rights of Small Man.

Colonel Declares One Can Not Get Honesty Unless He Insists That a Man Show Honesty to All—Must Distrust the Man Who Will Inweigh the Honesty of Another, Starts for the West.

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 25.—With a parting shot at his opponents in the political fight he is leaving behind in New York state, Colonel Roosevelt started on the long leg of his western trip, today.

"I feel that it is just a little more my duty to hunt the crook out of public life, because he happens to be in my own party," declared the colonel at a breakfast given in his honor at the Ellicott club. And some five hundred Buffalo business men stood up and shouted themselves hoarse, recognizing the old time Roosevelt, and his determination to fight.

The colonel's train rolled into Buffalo about 6:30, but despite the early hour a crowd was on hand to welcome him. He was hurried into an automobile and rushed to the situation in the state.

"I think my remarks in Herkimer, yesterday, covered the ground fairly well," was the reply.

"The fight is on, then?"

"Yes, the fight is on," he answered snapping his teeth.

On the way to the station the colonel was cheered repeatedly. His train pulled out at 7:30.

Preliminary Plans.

Roosevelt has already made preliminary plans for the big fight that will come when the state convention gathers at Saratoga on September 27. Roosevelt realizes that he is heavily handicapped by his lack of a state-wide organization, but he is depending largely on his personal popularity and the issues he will represent to win him support.

Before he left the home of his brother-in-law Douglas Robinson, in the Herkimer hills, at midnight last night, the colonel had begun the work of organizing his forces for the fight. During the afternoon and evening, the telephone from the Robinson house was kept busy with calls to and from New York. Lloyd C. Griscom, New York, county chairman, and Collector of Customs William Loeb, Jr., who have been connected with the colonel's end of the fight, were getting their instructions. They will bear the brunt of the skirmishing from now until that time Roosevelt will be conducting a "long distance" fight from points along the route on his western trip.

There is no doubt that the beginning of the colonel's trip has encouraged him mightily. His more than enthusiastic reception in the heart of Vice President Sherman's stronghold awakened the old time Roosevelt fire and he is now in the fight "for keeps."

Columbus, O., Aug. 25.—While making an auto inspection tour of the city Major George Florence and Safety Director E. L. McCune arrived at Mt. Vernon and St. Clair avenues just as a crowd of several hundred were about to initiate the nonunion conductor of a car in a riotous manner. Stones had been thrown at the car and the conductor, J. H. Hankins, fired several shots from his revolver at the crowd. Cries of "Hang him," "Kill him," greeted the officers as they dashed up to the scene in their automobile. Hankins was arrested for discharging firearms, but none of the mob was molested.

HOW PRESIDENT TAFT PRESERVES HIS HEALTH

Has Ability To Take Naps at Odd Moments.

GETS SLEEP WHILE TRAVELING IN AUTO

It Is Only by This Means That He Has Time To Get as Much Exercise as He Does and Yet Have Time To Meet All of His Many Engagements.

Beverly, Mass., Aug. 16.—The secret of President Taft's splendid health is out. It is his ability to take advantage of every opportunity to recuperate from his labors and to snatch a few minutes of refreshing sleep between activities.

Residents along the shore boulevard have grown accustomed to the sudden appearance of an automobile with a big passenger just visible through the dust—and that passenger sound asleep. It was the president. The executive often sleeps in his automobile going and coming from the Myopia golf links—that is when he makes the journey alone. The other day when the presidential party motored seventy-one miles over to see Miss Delia Torrey, the aunt of the chief magistrate, the executive slumbered peacefully nearly all the way back The automobile went nearly forty-five miles an hour the greater part of the way.

President Snatches Rest.

It is this faculty of the president to snatch a moment's rest at every available opportunity—the ability to throw off the cares of state and gain strength in little cat-naps—that keeps the head of the nation strong and healthy despite his arduous labors. It is said that on his trip across the continent and back last fall the president would board his special train completely worn out after a speech or reception, drop into a chair, and in a moment be fast asleep. Twenty minutes later, when a crowd at another station clamored for his appearance he would awake, fully refreshed.

Captain "Archie" Butt, military aide, has caught the habit. It is a common sight late in the evening to catch a glimpse of the presidential automobile under an electric light, and see both Executive Taft and Captain Butt sound asleep. There are always two other occupants, however, who are very much awake—Robinson, the chauffeur, and the secret service operative.

Jung Is the Except on.

Most people—including the president of the United States—come to the summer capital with the idea of enjoying the ocean breezes. Hundreds of Boston business men live in Beverly and "commute" to Boston daily.

It has remained for Joe Jung, proprietor of one of Beverly's justly-celebrated laundering establishments, and a countryman of "Wu Ting Fang, the Wise," to reverse the usual order of things. Joe "commutes" to Beverly and lives in Boston.

"No like climate," Jung said to a group of newspaper correspondents. "Business him good. Climate velly bad. I no standee weather here. Boston, him heap better."

Agreeable to Clerks.

President Taft's clerks in the executive offices here are to have the luxury of a private bathing beach Just back of the Pickering house, in which the offices are now located, and where the employes likewise eat and sleep, is a nice stretch of sand beach. The bathing would be fine if it were not for the boulders at the water's edge.

W. S. Hinman, of the stenographic force was painfully injured by one of these stones when taking a swim recently. Secretary Norton promptly ordered a laborer to clear off the beach to prevent a repetition of such accidents and has promised his force a first-class bathing beach.

A Pleasant Job.

Being a clerk in the executive offices is rather a pleasant job these days.

Last season the executive offices were located in the Board of Trade building, at the corner of Federal and Cabot streets. This year, however, Secretary Norton decided on a change. He leased the big house fronting on the ocean and turned the first floor into offices. On the second and third floors are enough rooms to accommodate all the clerks. The employes have clubbed together, employed a chef, and bought dishes and kitchen utensils

There is a big porch and a fine lawn fronting on the ocean. The view is superb and the ocean breezes blow unceasingly. The house is comfortably furnished.

Hard on Correspondents.

The only people who aren't satisfied with the new order of things are the newspaper correspondents. The town is scattered out over six or seven miles; the executive offices are half a mile from the town proper, and the Taft cottage is two miles away. The executive offices must be watched all the time for callers, as all those who go to the president's house generally make the arrangements with Secretary Norton.

There isn't any press room in the big house now constituting the executive offices. The newspaper men are not allowed to loiter in the building. The only thing left for them to do is to sit on the sidewalk; occupy the kitchen portch, or sit under the trees in the front yard. The nearest telephone or telegraph—save the wires for the use of the offices—is half a mile away.

OBITUARIES.

Russell—Mary Lovina, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Welch, was born near Prospect, May 9, 1874, and departed this life August 8 1910, aged thirty-six years, two months and twenty-nine days. She united with the Baptist church at Prospect in early life. She was a faithful worker there until her removal to Marion, ten years ago. Since which time she has been an earnest worker in the First Baptist church of this place. She was an energetic worker in the W. C. T. U., the Marion Baptist Missionary society, and a member of Marion Chapter of No. 149 A. I. U. She was united in marriage to H. L. Russell, November 25, 1897. To this happy union were born three children--Edith-Vernell, Anna Winifred and John Emerson Bright generous and kind, she bore her great suffering and the knowledge of separation from husband and children which she knew must come, with the Christian fortitude which makes true greatness," Verily she fought a good fight and kept the faith." She was fully conscious to the last recognizing the sorrowing friends and telling them not to mourn for her. She had been a constant sufferer for eleven long months and expressed the desire to be taken home that she might rest. She leaves a husband, three children, father, mother, four sisters, one brother and a host of frineds and relatives to mourn her untimely death.

Frederick—Jacob Frederick, son of Peter and Fanny Frederick, was born May 11, 1875, and departed this life, Monday, August 8, 1910, at the advanced age of eighty-five years, two months and twenty-eight days. He is the last of a family of seven children, five sisters and one brother. He moved from Chillicothe to Big Island in his youth. In 1846, he united in marriage with Mrs. Mary McDaniel, to which union seven children were born. She died in 1861. Three years later, he married Miss Catharine Dove. This union was blessed with six children. She died in 1873. Following several years as a widower, he united in marriage with Mrs. Mary Smallwood. She departed this life a few years following. He ever believed in God and in the power of Christ to forgive sins, and many years ago he united as a member of M. E church at Forest, and ever lived a humble, faithful christian. For years past he was in failing health, and slowly and surely descended to the tomb, dying of age and its attending infirmities, leaving ten children, forty-three grandchildren and sixteen greatgrandchildren. The funeral service was held Wednesday afternoon, August 10, at the Pleasant Hill M. E. church, attended by Rev J. A. Sutton, of La-Rue. Years ago, when pastor of the Big Island church, I formed a very pleasant acquaintance with Father Frederick. He favorably impressed me with his kind. tender, loving union and manner and it is with pleasure that I now think of him, his genial ways and gentle words. He frequently attended church service and gave to me every assurance that he was endeavoring to lead the life of a true, humble christian, merely waiting on the border to pass from us into the summer land above. J. A. Sutton.

Some Mammoth Plums.

I. D. Lewis, of Summit street, has two blue Lombard plum trees on his property that are bearing some of the largest plums, this season, that were ever raised in this vicinity. While the crop from the two trees consisted of twenty bushels last season, they were not so large as the plums picked from the trees this season. However, but three bushels were secured this year.

GOVERNORS OF WESTERN STATES WILL DISCUSS CONSERVATION AT SALT LAKE CITY

Salt Lake City, Aug 15—For the purpose of conferring on conservation of natural resources, particularly the great forests of the Northwest, the governors of several states will meet here August 18 at the invitation of Governor M. E. Hay, of Washington The governors of Montana, Wyoming, Utah and Acting Governor Jay Bowerman of Oregon have promised to attend or send representatives to the gathering. In explaining his reason for calling the convention Governor Hay has sent out this statement: "We of the state of Washington have no quarrel with the principle of conservation, but we feel that it is high time to get down to a practical business basis in carrying out the principle. We want conservation that will not hamper authority and retard development. These are the things that will be discussed at the conference, and I hope that as a result of the meeting the West will be enabled to command a fairer consideration from the rest of the nation on this question." The entire nation is interested in the governors' conference, as it takes place just before the national conservation congress at St Paul, where former President Roosevelt, President Taft, Gifford Pinchot and former Secretary of the Interior Garfield will be speakers.

MANAGER HEINE PEITZ AND PADDY WELLER

Are Arrested and Taken to City Prison,

ON THE CHARGE OF MAKING DISTURBANCE

Investigation of the Matter Leads to the View That They Were Doing Their Best To Prevent One—No Charge Against Them—Car Crew May Be Dismissed.

Manager Peitz, of the Lancaster club, and "Paddy" Weller, of the local club, were arrested, Wednesday night, by Officers Powell and Hostetter while returning with a number of other ball players from a social gathering out on Davids street. The party was returning on the last car, which was in charge of Conductor Hartman and Motorman Peterson.

When the party of ball players boarded the car at Bellefontaine avenue, two girls were in the car. A smiling flirtation was carried on by another player and one of the girls and being witnesed by the conductor, he accused the players of being insulting. A few jocular remarks were made to the men in charge of the car, and when one of the players remarked that there were fourteen passenegrs on the car and only twelve fares registered the motorman started after Peitz with his switch bar. As he drew back to strike the Lancaster manager, Weller grabbed the bar from him.

By this time the car was in front of the courthouse and Officers Powell and Hostetter jumped on to see what the trouble was. The motorman pointed out Peitz and Weller, and said they were causing a disturbance on the car and without any investigation they were taken to the city prison. Superintendent Boyer made an investigation of the case, Thursday morning, and exonerates the players.

The motorman and conductor claim they do not know the girls who were on the car, but they are known on sight to a number of the players. When Peitz and Weller were arraigned, Thursday, there was no charge for them to answer, and they were dismissed pending an investigation. Superintendent Boyer appeared later in company with the two employes in charge of the car, when the trouble occurred. He stated that he could not see what charge could be made against the men, and that he was of the opinion his men were in the wrong, and if circumstances warranted on his investigation, they would be dismissed from the service of the company.

Complaint was made to the police that a number of women had gathered at the Price home, on Owen street, Wednesday night and were causing a disturbance. When the police arrived at the house there was nothing more than a few women singing in low tones and playing an organ, and they were of the opinion that the complaint was sent in by some enemy of the Price family.

T. B. Miller reported to the police, Thursday, that a bicycle was left at his home on Monroe street, and that the wheel has probably been stolen from some person. The police have received no report of a stolen bicycle in the past few days and instructed Miller to hold the wheel for the present.

A man giving the name of Martin Kenny was arrested at the barn of the Central Delivery company, about 9 o'clock, Wednesday evening, and locked in the city prison by Officer Powell on a charge of loitering. The man had no money, and was released after the mayor delivered a lecture to him Thursday morning.

Chief Klinefelter returned from Columbus, Tuesday evening, to which place he accompanied F. E. Disbennett, and brought back the latter's wheel, which was recently stolen from him here. Disbennett had little trouble in proving his property to the satisfaction of the Columbus officers, who were holding the wheel. While the fellow who stole the bicycle is probably in Columbus, the officers there are too busy to look for him. His arrest may follow later, as there is another wheel there that was stolen from a resident here.

CHARLES LANDON IS IN A RUNAWAY

His Horse Becomes Frightened on Davids Street Today.

Charles Landon, of Big Island, had an exciting experience in a runaway Tuesday evening. Landon was driving south on Davids street and at a point just north of Bellefontaine avenue his horse became frightened and started to run. In turning onto Bellefontaine avenue Landon was thrown out and the rig overturned. The horse continued its wild dash, tearing loose from the buggy and part of the harness. C. N. Thurston, a fireman, stopped the animal near the fire department.

COMMISSIONERS AND COUNTY SURVEYOR

Went to Columbus To Inspect Tar-Asphalt Roads

County Commissioners W H Holverstott A H Trout and Henry Seiter and County Surveyor Edward S Ault went to Columbus Friday to inspect a number of samples of 100 feet strips of tar asphalt and water bound roads While there they will see the state highway commissioner and get his report on the different kinds of material used in the sample roads

The macadam road is a thing of the past said Surveyor Ault Thursday and in the future we want to get the best and the cheapest for Marion county What roads we have are in good condition and if they haven't anything better in these samples than what we have we don't want them

The commissioners contemplate making many road improvements within the next year or two and nothing is too good for Marion county they say believing that the best built road although more costly at the time of building perhaps is the cheaper in the long run

IS SHOT JUST BELOW HEART

Officer Jerome Hochstetter Is Dangerously Wounded.

POSSIBILITY OF FATAL RESULTS

Shooting Occurs in the West End Erie Yards.

While Hunting for a Hold-Up Man, Hochstetter Comes on a Man Sitting at the Window of a Coach. A Companion of the Man Fires from Behind Him Through the Window, Hitting the Officer.

Officer Jerome Hochstetter, forty-three years old and married, was shot and dangerously, if not fatally, wounded, Thursday night shortly before 10 o'clock, when attempting to arrest in the Erie freight yards one of two thugs, who are supposed to have held up and robbed LeRoy Hoffhines, a steam shovel craneman, on Silver street, near Kenton avenue, earlier in the evening

Hochstetter was shot in the left breast, a few inches below the heart, the ball traveling a distance of twenty inches in his body, but in spite of the terrible wound he walked over half a mile from the Erie hump to a point within a quarter of a mile or so of the Kenton avenue crossing He was then placed on a switch-engine and hauled to the Kenton avenue crossing, where he was placed in the Postle-Curtis ambulance and taken to the Marion City hospital, on Blaine avenue.

This morning an operation was performed on the wounded man, and following the operation it was announced that he was resting very comfortably. However, owing to the dangerous route of the bullet, his recovery is extremely doubtful

Accompanied by Fisher.

At the time of the shooting, Officer Hochstetter was accompanied by Patrolman Harry D Fisher, who has been on the force about a week Fisher came to Marion less than a month ago.

Shortly after the hold-up occurred on Silver street, Captain A L Bond detailed Hochstetter, who had just returned from Prospect, and Officer Fisher, to look for the hold-up men in the railroad yards The two officers rode to the union station, and walked out the tracks as far as the hump. They were walking along together when Hochstetter saw a man sitting in an old passenger coach. Drawing his gun, he walked up to the window, which was raised, and declared, according to Hochsetter's statement made to Prosecuting Attorney Charles L. Justice at the hospital, Thursday night

"Come down out there; I want to look you over, and I want you to keep your hands in your pockets"

Hochstetter did not know another man was in the coach, but as he gave his order to the man in the window, a companion arose in the rear and deliberately shot the officer

Patrolman Fisher does not exactly know where he was standing when the shooting occurred, but declares that he was near, because he shot several times at the fleeing man, he said

Fisher was greatly excited. To some he said he had shot three times when the men dashed out one end of the coach, and to others he said he had shot twice Asked which direction the men went, Fisher declared they ran toward Marion

MAJOR GEN. DICK AND STAFF READY FOR RIOT CALLS
CLEARING THE TRACKS AFTER MOB ATTACK

SOLDIERS AND GENTLEMEN.

"Pardon me, sir but you cannot get through here without a pass." This is what an Ohio militiaman said to a citizen who was about to cross the guard lines in the state house grounds in Columbus, where the soldiers encamped during the street car strike In emergency, the polite suggestion might have been followed up with a bullet, but the attitude of the gentleman soldier was more effective than a graft order "Halt" for it commanded respectful obedience and gave no ground for a feeling of resentment which sometimes breeds violence as a result of pompous display of authority

General William V McMaken, of the First brigade and Colonel Lloyd W Howard, commanding the regiment, are to be especially commended for the tactful manner in which their gentlemen soldiers conducted themselves. At no time was there unnecessary show of force Even the strikers at all of their meetings of violence and rioting was discouraged, commended the militiamen The bond of sympathy between the car men and the soldiers all good citizens of the same great commonwealth was evidenced when the men of the Sixth regiment contributed $500 of their camp pay to relieve the distress of needy families of some of the strikers—Toledo Blade

Electric Smelting.

The success of electric smelting is indicated by its rapid adoption. A German authority counts up 114 electric furnaces that are at work making steel, and his list is incomplete, some important omissions having been pointed out. Of those enumerated 77 are arc furnaces, two generate heat by arc and resistance combined, and 35 are induction furnaces. There are also some pig iron smelting furnaces, Norway and Sweden have two or three. Of the steel furnaces seven are at work in England and a number in America, but the great majority are in France and Germany. Most of the furnaces are of small capacity—one to five tons. They are employed chiefly on high-class steels, for special purposes, but a fair proportion are working on ordinary steels, such as structural steel, castings and railway ties, rails, etc.

Knew His Better Half.

This story, according to the New York Telegraph, comes from a lawyer. A worthy and provident man went to this legal adviser to make his will He gave many instructions and it seemed that everything was arranged. The lawyer began to read over his notes and put a point to his client. 'Oh—you have made provision for your wife in the event of her surviving you Does that remain unaltered if she should marry again?' 'No, no,' said the client, eagerly 'What am I leaving her? One thousand dollars a year. If she marries again make it $2,000" The lawyer thought there must be a misunderstanding and pointed out that most men put it the other way about "I know," said the client; "but the man who takes her will deserve it."

Home Patience.

Once in a while homes need to be patient places. The children seem rather disappointing; they do not quickly discover their place or find their niche. They must be allowed time and room. In the household, as everywhere, tyranny over the individual must be prohibited if there are to be days of progress and contentment.—Woman's Life.

INTELLECTUAL STRENGTH.

In an address delivered the other day at Ayr, Scotland, on the reopening of the old bridge of Ayr, immortalized by Robert Burns, Lord Rosebery said some words of lasting value on the subject of the surroundings from which spring the works of genius. He had been commenting upon the fortunate chance, from the world's point of view, that Burns did not carry out his purpose of emigrating to Jamaica early in life. Had he gone, declared Lord Rosebery, he might have become a rum lord or a sugar lord, but he hardly would have written many of the poems which have won him lasting fame.

"Poverty," declared Lord Rosebery, "produces masterpieces and wealth smothers them. You will be able to count on your fingers the masterpieces produced by rich people. You will find that almost all have been written under the pressure of poverty, though I believe that Shakespeare became the owner of some urban property in his later years. But take one instance Would Wordsworth have written any better than Rogers If Wordsworth had been as rich as Rogers? My clear conclusion from a very general survey of all the great masterpieces of literature is that a genius should not be wealthy or he is very likely to see his genius stifled by the fact."

That wealth kills intellectual effort along creative lines is a lesson which is worthy to be remembered The man who longs for wealth that he may have leisure to achieve great things should know that creative genius thrives best where effort is a necessity. Even Lord Rosebery's concession respecting Shakespeare is based upon what now seems to be wrong conclusions. One of the most notable results of modern literary research is Professor Charles William Wallace's nearly positive demonstration, by long research amid original documents never before consulted, that Shakespeare did not become a rich man and in his later years did not retire to live on his property. The long-accepted legend does not fit the recorded facts

The achievements of Shakespeare's later years—including the years of "The Tempest" and the other plays of that period—according to the reasoning of Professor Wallace, as set forth in the Century magazine for August, sprung from a brain burdened with the anxieties of a precarious theatrical enterprise in which he was minor partner and from which he gained a relatively small income.—Chicago News

KING AND QUEEN OF ITALY GO TO SEE THE FATHER OF LATTER CROWNED AT MONTENEGRO

Rome, Aug 18—King Victor Emmanuel and Queen Helene of Italy have started for the little principality of Montenegro, which is soon to become the kingdom of Zeta, with the father of Queen Helene, Prince Nicholas I, as king. Advices from the Swiss frontier that anarchists have gathered to assassinate the royal party have caused extraordinary police precautions to be taken but the Swiss authorities declare that the gathering of anarchists has nothing to do with a plot to slay the king When the king and queen of Italy arrive in Montenegro the actual change from dependency to kingdom will have taken place, but for several days following their arrival there will be elaborate festivals in court circles It is said that King Nicholas plans to make his court as exclusive and stately as that at Vienna

A Sketch

By ETHAN ARBUCKLE

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

I was sketching in the country. With my portable easel before me, seated on my three legged stool, I was doing a bit of landscape when a girl came by who surely did not appear rural. Her dress was ragged, her hat, a straw, darkened by the weather and having a tawdry ornament, while over her shoulders she wore a faded shawl.

Had I not, with the habit of an artist, kept an eye open for models I might not have noticed a certain kind of beauty under these frayed garments. The girl took off her hat and displayed a wealth of hair, with just enough red in it to make it gold. The day was hot, and she threw back her shawl. Then I noticed that her bodice was cut low and revealed a superb neck set on a pair of well rounded shoulders.

"Why do you wear that kind of dress at this time of day?" I asked.

"Because I haven't any other."

"Do you live about here?"

"No. I don't live anywhere. I'm tramping."

Then she cried.

Not a slip in grammer, not an unrefined expression escaped her. She had evidently seen better days. Indeed, she might have lived in luxury.

"If you will let me make a sketch of you," I said, "I will pay you well for doing so."

"What will you do with the sketch? Will everybody see it? I wouldn't wish them to see it at home."

"I will put it in my portfolio. I don't think any one who knows you will ever see it."

She consented, and I made the sketch, putting in the colors exactly as they were. I gave her a good price for the pose, which she clutched eagerly. I believe she was hungry. While I worked I was talking to her with a view to learning something about her. But she would tell me nothing willingly, and I was unable to induce her to give me any information by artifice. At last I was obliged to let her go her way.

But her picture—it was a fine representation of "From Affluence to Poverty"—remained with me, gazing out at me from the sad eyes, and I found myself constantly taking it out from among my other sketches and looking at it Indeed, I found myself unfit for work, so complete a hold had it taken upon me. I slept that night at a farmhouse and woke in the night depressed by a feeling that the girl was wandering about with no home, no money, nothing to eat and obliged to wear anything she could get to cover her. What a selfish world! Why had I not taken her into my heart and provided for her wants?

Then I remembered that there is a barrier which prevents young men from assisting young women. As to taking her into my heart, that I had done, though I did not realize what a foothold she had gained there.

One thing about her was patent. She was pure. No such beauty as hers need go in rags except through purity It was this doubtless that prevented my banishing her from my mind and drew me toward her.

I have always had a habit of reading the personals in newspapers. I do so because I like to have my fancy started in weaving stories that the few advertised words indicate One day I read the following.

Information wanted of Gladys Seymour, twenty years old When last seen she wore a dark blue dress, cut low neck; eyes dark brown; hair the same, with a tinge of red in it.

I saw the subject of my sketch described in this personal. I called immediately on the advertiser and found a lawyer I showed him my sketch, and he showed me a photograph. They were identical save as to dress. That of the photograph was silk, that of the sketch rags. He told me that the girl had been driven from home by the cruelty of a stepmother. She had gone vowing never to return. The stepmother had died, and the girl's father, who was alone, was anxious to find his daughter, but had little hope of doing so.

I determined to hunt for Gladys Seymour myself. Taking my sketch with me, I went to the place where I had made it, then started in the direction she had gone when she left me. I spent a day in discovering where she had slept that night. A farmer's wife had taken her in and given her a bed and a supper. Having learned the direction she had taken the next morning, I went on and tracked her to a direct line to a little town, where I lost her. But, showing my sketch and making inquiries, I traced her to a store, where she had been given work behind the counter There I found her, though in a better costume than that in which I had met her.

I don't know which was more affected by the news I gave her, I at telling it or she at learning it. She went at once to her employer to say that she would like to go to her home, and he excused her from remaining. I furnished her with the means to get there—not as charity, but as a loan.

Gladys Seymour did not remain at home long with her father, for I stepped in and took her away from him. There was a bone of contention between me and my wife for a long while. She wished the sketch I had made of her when she was tramping destroyed. I loved it and wished to keep it. But the period was so painful to her that I finally consented to burn the picture.

ALLEGES HER HUSBAND THREATENS HER LIFE

Serious Charges Are Made by Mrs. Emma Oehler.

HUSBAND CHOKES HER FREQUENTLY

So She Claims in Her Petition for Divorce—Injunction Is Granted by Court To Prevent the Husband, Charles Oehler, from Disposing of His Property.

Alleging that her twenty-six-year-old husband had choked her and frequently threatened to take her life, as well as his own, Emma Oehler, through Attorney H Edmund Hill, brought an action for a divorce from Charles G Oehler, Thursday, in the common pleas court.

Judge W. E Scofield granted an injunction restraining the defendant from molesting the plaintiff in any or disposing of or mortgaging a driving horse, two work horses, two cows and some farming implements owned by him.

In her petition, the plaintiff says she was married to the defendant in this county, February 29, 1909, and that they now have one child, aged six months. Because of his constant abuse, she says that she is a physical wreck and was compelled to leave him, taking her child with her, Wednesday, August 17. She asks for a divorce, custody of their child and temporary and permanent alimony.

PEOPLE CAN NOT BE MADE GOOD BY LAW

Compulsion Never Has Nor Will Save Souls.

CLASS LEGISLATION IS GREAT HARDSHIP

Hardship and Prosecution Invariably Result from It—Such Is the View Expressed by Elder James E. Shultz at the Seventh Day Adventist Camp-Meeting Wednesday.

The morning hour at the camp of the Seventh Day Adventists was taken by the Religious Liberty department of the Ohio Conference of Seventh Day Adventists. The secretary of the department made a short speech outlining the specific work of the conference. Elder James E Shultz believed that every individual should be allowed to worship according to the dictates of the conscience regardless of the masses, and that all men are created equal and endowed with certain rights, with liberty and the pursuit of happiness paramount. Since compulsion can not save men, all should be free to do as they think best regarding religious matters. The Bible enjoins freedom of conscience, and all its promises are based on admonitions and warnings, but force is foreign to the plan of saving men from the snares of the enemy. The Savior said: "Whosoever will, may come." God desires that all should come, but even the Savior will not compel men to come against their will and judgment, so when class legislation is favored hardship and persecution always result. The speaker reviewed the experiences of nations where the union of church and state had brought persecution upon the defenseless heads of thousands.

Elder A. C Shannon, secretary of the department next read a paper covering different phases of the subject under discussion, and in the speaker's judgment governments have no moral right to compel the conscience of even the minority in religious matters. Many extracts were read, giving the inevitable results from such a course. This nation was established upon the principles of freedom, and should remain the land of liberty as long as time shall last.

Afternoon Session.

The three-o'clock meeting was of a devotional nature, and one that melted the congregation till streaming eyes revealed the mighty power of the Infinite One. Professor B. G. Wilkinson, Ph. D, of Washington, gave the address. His remarks and comments on Revelations 2:4 were very touching and many hearts were pricked by the presence of sin. The professor related personal experiences and experiences from the lives of others, showing that nothing in all the world can be compared to the first love which comes to the individual at conversion, and that nothing could be more serious than the loss of this valuable asset which God in mercy gave. It was soon evident that the words of the speaker were having a remarkable influence; the mighty power of God was manifested and many faces revealed the struggle within the human heart. It was a time when the spirtual nature gained the ascendency over natural tendencies and desires. When the invitation was given for all to stand who were fully persuaded that it was time to yield to God and surrender all to Him, fifty stood in the congregation, confessing before God and men the desire to have a closer walk with Christ and yield all to Him. All were given an opportunity to speak, and from the testimonies given all agreed that the day star had arisen in their hearts and the blessings of the gospel had come nearer than ever before. It will be a meeting long to be remembered. Another call was given for all who desired to have a deepr consecration to come forward and more than 200 responded.

The Evening Discourse.

Elder A C Shannon, of Toledo, gave the discourse in the evening. He spoke of conditions and influences prevailing, and carefully studied the conditions in the eleventh chapter of Daniel. The history of ancient Rome was reviewed, showing results of the union of the civil and ecclesiastical power. Several extracts were read of historical interest. The government of the United States was founded upon the pedestal of Liberty, and long may we be blessed with the principles of freedom!

A PROLOGUE TO THE ROSE HORSEWHIPPING

Is Pulled Off by Mrs. Lilly in Columbus.

GIVES HUSBAND BEATING THERE

Having Had a Certain Amount of Practice on Him, She Goes to Morral Where She Uses Her Horsewhip on the Maid from Marion County Village.

Another chapter in the Morral horse-whipping case is related in Thursday's Ohio State Journal. It reads:

"Yes, I horsewhipped Ora Rose, Monday, at the home of Rev. J. H. Bagwell, in Morral, and thrashed my husband, Sunday, in our rooms in the Dennison hotel. I did it because they had no right to act the way they did, and I'll do it again if necessary, said Mrs. Howard R. Lilly, wife of an engineer in the employ of the Pennsylvania railroad, yesterday.

Mrs. Lilly at the home of her father C. H. Welsh, 955 Hunter avenue, yesterday admitted the horsewhipping and justified her act by the statement that, for several weeks, Miss Rose had been occupying the attention of her husband. Miss Rose is twenty years old and is the daughter of a widow.

"The girl knew that Mr. Lilly was married, but continued to act as she should not," said Mrs. Lilly yesterday. "I went down to Morral, Monday, and went to her home, but I was told that she was at Rev. Mr. Bagwell's house. I met here there and whipped her soundly. After I had whipped her, she admitted that she had gone to the Bagwell home to telephone to my husband.

Going To Hang On To Him.

"Sunday morning I thrashed my husband good. I didn't use a whip, but I thrashed him, all right."

Asked whether she would seek a divorce form her husband, Mrs Lilly said: No I will not. I don't believe in divorce. It wouldn't be right. I'm going to keep my husband for the sake of our little three-year-old son."

The Lillys have been married nearly fourteen years.

"I understand that a warrant has been sworn out for my arrest," said Mrs. Lilly. "If an officer comes, I am ready and willing to go back to Marion, or Morral, or wherever they want to take me. I have done nothing for which I am sorry. What I did, I did because I wanted to."

Miss Rose, whose home is in Morral which is near Marion, has been living in Columbus, it is said, for the last few weeks.

Lilly, who as a rule is at the Dennison every day, was not at the hotel Tuesday or yesterday.

When told last night that it was reported that Miss Rose, armed with a whip, was looking for her, Mrs. Lilly said: "Let her some. That doesn't worry me in the least. I'll take care of myself."

Miss Rose Leaves Morral.

Miss Rose left Morral Wednesday, so a message from that village states, and it is understood up there that Lilly is missing from Columbus.

BOTH NIGHT AND DAY WORK TO BE RUSHED

On the Improvement of Little Scioto River.

SEARCHLIGHT WILL BE USED AT NIGHT

The Big Steam Dredge Made by the Marion Steam Shovel Company Which Will Be Used Is Thus Equipped—Work Will Be Started Early in Month of September.

Timothy Foohey, of Fort Wayne, Indiana, president of the Foohey Dredging company, Thursday signed a contract for the work of deepening, widening and straightening the Little Scioto river in this county, his company having been awarded the contract for the job at its bid of $65,500 by County Surveyor Edward S. Ault, Wednesday afternoon. He furnished bond in the sum of $68,495, which is practically the amount of the surveyor's estimated cost of the improvement.

Actual work on the improvement will be started some time in September. Shortly after securing the contract, Wednesday, John Foohey, a son of the president of the company, left for Price Hill, Missouri, where he will prepare for shipment to Marion the big dredge, a product of the Marion Steam Shovel company, that will be used in the work. It will require five flat-cars to haul the dredge and three weeks will be required to load it and ship to this city.

To complete the work by January 1, 1911, as specified in the contract, the Foohey Dredging company will employ a large force, both night and day. The dredge is equipped with a large motor and a powerful searchlight.

"With the aid of this searchlight the river will be made as light as day," said Timothy Foohey, Thursday, "and we can work just as well as when the sun is shining. My three sons, all of whom are in the dredging business, will have charge of the work. I'll be here a part of the time, but my principal business now, after twenty years of contracting, is to land the jobs and then let my boys look after it."

All the other contractors here to bid on the job spoke very highly of the successful bidder.
